

LIVES OF MANY DOGS AT STAKE.

Alderman Goldwater Introduces Ordinance to Prohibit the Keeping of Dogs in Apartment and Tenement Houses.

OWNERS OF DOGS PROTEST.

The lives of thousands of dogs—spaniels, terriers, lap dogs and just plain dogs—the happiness of almost as many women and the personal right of a tenant rest on the action of the Council concerning an ordinance to prohibit the keeping of dogs in houses occupied by more than one family. The passage of the law may mean a decrease in the canine population of greater New York or a great migration of flat-dwellers to single houses in the suburbs.

Protests are many and loud. Every Alderman has been implored by residents of his ward to work against the measure, while neighbors of the petitioners have begged for its passage. Women bring their little bundle of living fur in their arms, "just to show how perfectly absurd it is that he should bother any one," and almost froth at the mouth over the proposed law. Here is the proposed statute that is causing the trouble:

"Section 1. No person shall keep or harbor any dog or dogs in the city of New York in any apartment-house, flat-house or tenement-house occupied by more than one family."

Alderman Goldwater, of the Bronx, is said to be the author of the bill; and, whatever his popularity among the women of his ward may have been, his name is now referred to with scorn by the owners of household pets. Not so, however, with the man who has long suffered from sleepless nights owing to a ceaseless barking across the hall.

Among the protestors who called at the City Hall was Albert Curtis, a member of the New York Athletic Club. He cornered several aldermen and some of them agreed to vote against the ordinance.

"That ordinance is a freak and interference on a man's personal rights," said Mr. Curtis. "For economic reasons thousands are forced to live in apartments. If the Council passes such a bill it will deprive the man of moderate means of the right to keep a dog. Thousands of children who find pleasure in their pets will be affected. The ordinance, if passed, will give too much chance for malicious persecution. Spite against a neighbor would be taken out on the dog. Half of the dogs in the city would have to be killed. It is not the dogs in apartment houses but those of men who live in single houses and keep from three to a dozen dogs that cause the nuisance."

AQUARIUM FISH NOW MAY WEEP.

Their Personal Friend, Supt. Jones, Is Legally Declared "Down and Out."

Col. James Jones, favorite of the children as the Superintendent of the Castle Garden Aquarium, and the personal friend of every fish in the place, except the skate, is declared to be "down and out" by Justice O'Gorman of the Supreme Court, who denies a writ of mandamus to Jones to compel Park Commissioner Wilcox to give him a place as Assistant Superintendent of Parks in place of that of "Superintendent of small parks," which was abolished by the new Commissioner when he succeeded Commissioner George C. Clatsworthy. Justice O'Gorman says Jones acquiesced in the abolishment of his old job when he applied for transfer to an assistant superintendency, and that Commissioner Wilcox is the sole judge to determine whether he shall be appointed Assistant Superintendent of Parks. The Aquarium has been transferred from the Park Department to the Zoological Society, and that leaves Col. Jones without a hook on which to hang his official hat.

The Open Secret of Our Clothing Success.

WHY is it that our business is constantly increasing, and that, too, in face of the keenest competition? What brings the crowds to The Big Store? What is the influence that makes every new customer a loyal friend? There must be some soundly logical and convincing reason for this wonderful business growth. There is. It is contained in the ### Magnetism of Promises Fulfilled at All Times.

Never any misrepresentations. Never any catchpenny methods, no fakes, no exaggerations, no garments sold as "all wool" that "grew on bushes," or that are the product of shoddy mills. AT THE BIG STORE it is the magnetism of tremendous stocks of quality. Garments produced by the greatest clothiers in the trade. Standard fabrics, garments designed by the best known artists in the tailoring business. Superior garments gathered here for your approval by our clothing specialist and his skilled staff. All this together with a large and competent force of polite salespeople, it is but natural that The Big Store's tremendous purchasing and distributing power creates the magnetism of prices which competitors of large and small degree have vainly attempted to equal.
